Mrs. J. Edward McCammon was severely injured in a driving accident on Baltimore Hill Tuesday evening when the horse which she was driving took fright at a motor cycle and she was thrown from the wagon. Mrs. McCammon was severely cut and bruised about the head and face and it is that she sustained internal injuries is apparent from her condition since the unfortunate mishap.

Mrs. McCammon was driving up Baltimore Hill with Lloyd VanDevender when one of the traces dropped from the single tree. They did not notice this and were not aware that it had happened until told after the accident by witnesses. Soon after the trace dropped the horse frightened at a motor cycle. Mr. VanDevender took the lines from Mrs. McCammon who had been driving, and endeavored to control the horse but it turned suddenly, tilting the light wagon sent throwing both the occupants to the road. Mrs. McCammon's head struck the sharp cobble stones and her head and face were severely cut, the blood gushing out the way over the pavement.

Dr. Walter H. O'Neal where attention was given and she was later removed to her home. Mr. VanDevender received very slight bruises.

The horse continued down Baltimore street running rapidly with the shafts and traces flying and only a tangle of the harness holding the wagon to the animal. When the Western Maryland station was reached the wagon was dragged into the team of the Eagle Hotel which was standing in the owen o'clock train. William Weaver was the attorney owning and drove the horses so far to the side as possible likely saving them serious injury from the accident.

HOW TO BUILD A SAND-CLAY ROAD

Proper Drainage Most Be First Consideration.

SIDE DITCHES ARE GOOD.

Before the Combination of Sand and Clay Has Become Thoroughly Dry It Should Be Dragged Every Morning to Smooth Out Ruts—Care Should Be Taken to Keep Ditches Clean.

When a sand-clay road is built upon a clay subsoil proper drainage is one of the most essential things, for unless the subgrade of the road is kept and from the scattering of sand-clay it does to break through, says Professor M. G. Hosmer of the University of South Carolina. Ordinarily side-ditching which must be large enough to carry off all of the water falling on the road, will be sufficient.

These side ditches should be wide and shallow rather than narrow and deep, as then they will not be liable to keep open nor dangerous to travel. They should be free from five to five feet wide and from one to one and a half feet deep, sloping three to one on the side next to the road and down to one on the outer side, and they should have a outlets as frequently as possible to carry the water safely away from the road. When the subgrade is wet or damp most of the time or is through swampy land the substrata should be laid to either the full foundation of the road dry and firm. It must be borne in mind that greater care must be exercised in this step of construction and in the majority of cases of a subgrade is under-laid.

The roadbed should be graded true to the lines and grades established by the engineer. All spongy material, vegetable matter, trees, roots and stumps should be carefully removed from the roadbed and the space thus filled in with sound material, and the surface of the roadbed should be dry and the sand and clay should be placed and harrowed with a disk harrow to a depth of four inches until the clay is completely pulverized, and the clay subgrade should be comparatively dry or it will be pulverize. After this has been done the roadbed should be leveled up, and it will then be ready for the sand.

The subgrade is now covered with six to eight inches of clean, sharp unground sand. When the clay already contains much sand the amount of sand stated above should be cut down by that much. The sand should be spread evenly and to be of a uniform thickness. To get the best results the road bed should be dry when the sand is added, and especially should it be so when the sand and clay are mixed, as it is very difficult to mix the sand evenly with the clay when the latter is wet and sticky.

The mixing is now carried on with a spike tooth spring tooth harrow until the sand and clay are thoroughly incorporated and the mixture is brought to a state of fine subdivision. The mixing is now dragged up with road machine. A split log drag may be used. From time until the surface becomes thoroughly consolidated the roadbed should be exercised to keep the surface smooth and properly crowned, but for at least a week the surface of the roadway should be watched closely with the split log road machine, for if the roadway is wore into ruts at this time a hard surface is never get a smooth surface.

An 8-inch crown is laid out and maintained by the surface should be smoothed with the road machine and given the proper crown, and before it is the crown entirely dry it should be rolled until it becomes hard and ceases to show the tracks of ordinary loaded vehicles. The roller should weigh from six to ten tons, never more, and may be either a steam power or a steam roller.

The side ditches should be given a general cleaning and repaired at least once in the early spring and once in the early fall. All trash and other obstructions should be removed and the sides opposite from the roadway, and at intervals places and holes in the ditches should be filled up with freshly packed soil and clay.

Salt Water For Dust Problem.

The efficacy of the salt water treatment has been so well demonstrated that the city officials have contracted with the Atlantic City Water Company to furnish the salt water for sprinkling purposes.

PLAYTIME AS WELL AS SPRINGTIME IS HERE.

Many Towns Without Recreation Center—Have We One?

The warmer the weather gets the more do the children want to play. But where can they frolic and romp about as they like? Almost every town in this country, including our own, is confronted with this question. Some have answered the question already by either providing a public playground or accepting an offer from some individual who has a large and generous enough to offer one.

Happy Hollow, the recreation play-ground of Fitchburg, Mass., presents to the people of that city, according to Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Clark, Jr. The playground, with its beautiful grounds, its wading pools and playhouse, is one of the finest in the United States, if not in the world, and cost more than $100,000. Mr. Clark presented the ground without any stipulations, and the only restriction attaching to it is produced at the suggestion of the assessors, that the property shall be used forever for play purposes and shall always be open to the public.

A MENACE TO RETAILERS.

Buying Exchange Threatens to Take Away Profits From Merchants.

It is a question whether or not the buying exchange will be able to supplant the jobbing houses and the manufacturers' representatives in the circulars' Southeast. In certain lines it is possible that it may be able to change a power, but in general lines it appears that it will be a difficult matter to impress upon the establishment of system of jobbing houses. Only the manufacturer cannot well maintain extensive warehouses at all important points and carry in stock practically everything that he manufactures, a multitude of wholesale houses to-day are unsupported and would not be any improvement over the present system, but there are some lines in certain trade.

It is possible for a dozen or more stores to combine and do purchasing collectively. In fact, there are a plan pursued by a number of western concerns. But to operate in any thing of an economical proposition the buying exchange would have to have much more advantageous than the established system of jobbing houses could afford and from jobber to retailer, a system that has been operated for a few thousand years of commercialism.

The early worm is easy picking for the early bird.

THE VALUE OF A KICK.

It Is Good For Your Business to Know People's Opinion of It.

The best way to overcome a mistake is before it happens. And the next best way is before much harm has been done as possible.

Many business house can know too much of what the outside world thinks of it. Not that they want to hear all complaints. That is why thousands of business houses have suggestion boxes and orders. The average man will let the matter drop, but there must be taken by his business somewhere else.

Many a business house never knows of its faults because it has not the cost or possible pleas, and they make sure that the average man has not been able to give it while it is hot.

"Please complain when anything seems wrong," is the constant invitation of a business house. It is to want you right, but we can't watch every thing at once.

Lessons For Washerwomen.

Licenses for washerwomen is the latest plan of Mayor William B. Jeremiah of Akron, Ohio, to which he announced that he would urge upon the city council at its next session. He says an ordinance requiring persons who take in washing to register with the city recorder. The mayor believes that this would be a convenience as a sanitary measure, as that disease may be spread through the medium of contagious diseases exist. The proposed ordinance also requires the payment of a fee of $1 annually.

HIS MANLY BEAUTY

By WALTER EMMONS BROOKS

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

At twenty-two I lived in a city and worked in a bank. Back of the house were yards just deep enough for clothes-lines and then the garden of other houses.

One day while looking out of my window I saw a girl sitting peacefully at a window and I learned to be back yards. She was doing something with her hands which I discovered to be knitting, though it was done beneath the sill so that I could not tell what. I was looking down presently, but whether her eyes were cast on her work I could not tell. I was struck with her regular features and, above all, with an expression of sadness that seemed inappropriate to a young face.

It doesn't require much to set a young man's fancy flying, though by this I do not mean to belittle the picture in which I have referred. I saw her about the same time every day and fell to dreaming about her. She first led love to imagination. A composer is attracted to a girl not for what she is, but for what his fancy paints her. And girls are still more apt to endow with all the beauties of mind and body him for them.

It was in the summer time, and when I came home from business every day I saw her at her window. I felt sure every day at that hour I saw the girl and not merely the girl's position. Since I stood right up before my own window it was impossible that she should not see me. I felt sure of her presence there. Occasionally she would turn her head toward me, but I could not see that her eyes ever rested on me. I felt that my attention to a pure girl would not gave upon a stranger unpleasantly, so I kept on looking at her.

Every day on entering my room after my return from business I dressed for the evening, and myself pretty as attractive as possible, then threw open the shutters and sat down at the window as possible that I might attract the attention of the young knitter. Presently the second, she would turn her face in my direction. This was unsatisfactory, and without say look of recognition. This I put down to her native reserve and to the fact that I had discovered that there was a young man opposite. I had discovered that she was not considered that young man especially handsome, but I felt sure that I could win him, for this was not unlike my experience. I had love at first sight, but I saw no other way of attracting her.

I spent some time discovering the young lady's favorite flowers, and a pot a cocked in as neatly and respectable as the house. This was not the thought of making headway by what I wrote, but by my open communication, and in doing so I wished to give her the impression that I was in accurate with the admiration, if any, that she had for my personal appearance.

To make a long story short, I recognized her appearance in the street. A young lady stating that, though she would not consent to be introduced to a stranger, in case I could find means of making myself known to her through a mutual friend or otherwise I might feel sure that a second more advantageous that the established system of jobbing houses could afford and from jobber to retailer, a system that has been operated for a few thousand years of commercialism.

MAKE PROGRESS AT NEW CHURCH

Foundation of New St. James Church is Practically Completed Deep Basement will Allow Use for Many Purposes.

Work at the new St. James church building on York street is making steady progress and the general size of the building can be determined by visiting the site of operations.

The great properties of the foundation has been completed, leaving a small section at the south end and a section of the west wall being as yet unfinished. The work of placing the granite slabs is now in progress. All the stone is being used and some of the granite in the old church is being placed in connection with the stone newly quarried.

The majority of the basement windows are also in position. The depth of the basement will make it available for many purposes and will be thoroughly lighted is indicated by the window openings. In order to afford this light the church is placed high and will be reached by a flight of steps up to in front by concrete walks. The main entrance being by stone steps.

The basement floorings is entirely completed and the work on the superstructure there will be started before long.

BLACKBANDER PLEADED GUILTY

Morrow Kendall got o e of the letters and decided to try to catch the writer. He did so and it developed that there was a young man opposite. He was questioned by the police and admitted that young man especially handsome, but felt sure that I could win him, for this was not unlike my experience. I had love at first sight, but I saw no other way of attracting her.

ATTELL NEAR RETIREMENT

Injury to Fighter's Shoulder Will Probably Put Him Out of Ring.

Rumors are current in boxing circles that Abe Attell, the featherweight champion, may be compelled to retire from the ring on a physician's report. He says the champion cannot box again for a year because of the injury to his shoulder bone.

Attell is more than twenty-eight years old and is said to be rather dubious as to his future. He has been aware of the injury when he attempts to receive punishment.

If Attell decides to retire there will be a scramble for his title. Johnny Kilbane, the English champion, may visit this country, but Jimmy Murphy is mentioned recently he was through with the ring forever.

SCHOOL BOARD REDUCED TAX

Building Tax Lower than for a Number of Years.New Teacher Elected for High School, Innovation in School Faculty.

At a meeting of the Gettysburg School Board on Friday evening the tax rate for the coming year was placed at nine mills, one mill lower than last year. The tax this year is divided into eight mills for school purposes and one mill for building. Last year 11 was sexes' and three respectively.

The School Board feels that the low building tax is a matter for general congratulation. It has not been at this low figure for many years which is all the more remarkable when the exertion of the businesses now High School building at a cost of $44,000 within the past three years is taken into consideration.

Walter Reynolds, a resident of Hanover, was elected as third assistant in the High School to teach mathematics and science branches. He made a new departure in the High School faculty which, with the exception of the principalship always consists of ladies.

Messrs Val. Berges and B. C. Welsh, of the Val. Berges Cut Glass Co., of Columbia, who left the Board Trade of Littlestown this week for the purpose of looking over the situation in that place. The gentlemen were met by a committee of the business and submitted two propositions for the consideration of the Board. The one was for the use of the Board in funds for employment, the company to pay interest on the same. The proposition or the Board furnish them with a building, the company to pay a reasonable length of time, they to have the option of purchasing the building at actual cost. It is said that at the Board a committee was appointed to investigate the matter for the purpose of building a factory of about one hundred feet square. It is said to be for sale in the company, but there will be nothing to do in the matter by the Board of Trade, for the purpose of erecting a factory, providing a suitable site can be secured.

STOLEN CLOTHES CAUSE OF FIGHT

West High Street Scene of Fracas in which Colored Man Struck Woman and General Excitement Prevailed. Cause of Trouble.

Stolen clothes, a tarnished knife and general excitement were a few of the things which prevailed on West High row on Tuesday of more than passing interest, after participating Jere Thompson and Thomas White, both colored, and both residing at 146 West High street.

White, who gives his home as Chambersburg, came to Gettysburg some weeks ago with the Mighty Haag circus. Since that time he had been making his home at 220 West High street with the family of Jere Thompson. On Tuesday morning the latter found that many of her clothes had disappeared and she at once went out to find the men. She accused him of stealing the garments and told him that she would have him arrested if he did not return them at once.

Miss Thompson then returned home followed by White who, it is alleged, made threats on the way to the house. When he reached there he struck her across the forehead. It is said that the woman falling back on the bed he then drew out a knife, according to witnesses, and attempted to inflict serious injury, when another woman rushed in between them and prevented further trouble.

Mrs. Thompson then left the house and on the street White is said to have struck her again. He then left the premises and it is said that he failed to get his pay for work done at the Haag circus and left for Chambersburg on Chambersburg street where he had been employed. At that time no trace of him has been found.

While the row was in progress and the police were notified by a neighborhood confusion Chief Bender was telephoned for and on his arrival at the home but White had, by that time, gotten a good start and though efforts were made to locate him in several parts of town no trace could be found.

The knife with which it is said to have quite a reputation in Carlisle and Harrisburg for his strength.

HANOVER 14 GETTYSBURG 1

Local Base Ball Team Gets Good Drubbing at Hands of York Diamonds. Failed to Hit and Fields Safely Bad.

The Gettysburg Y. M. C. A. base ball team went down to rather ingloriously defeat before the Hanover club Saturday afternoon at Hanover by the one sided score of 14 to 1.

Nineteen errors contributed to the defeat. Jos Rock pitched for Gettysburg and he touched up for a total of sixteen hits. Lawrence pitched for Hanover and he allowed only three. Basket of honor with which the pitcher is presented by the team is awarded to the incorrigible custom of the pitcher to present the basket to the batter, however serious his work.

Gettysburg has a team which it never dreamed of getting to the public this season. Base running, but not being invited to address the women meeting of a great convention I was prevented by a near friend to read this article. At the time I was told:

"Now, ladies, I am going to read you a poem of mine,' which was greeted with a hearty laugh by the audience. But this is a truly serious poem; I expressed, only in a humorous way, my avowed intention.

I had to fly the misunderstanding, cut the poem in my pocket, saying that I would read a report from the Hamilton England, to superintend the building of a new mill import 100 French peasants as workers.

It is proposed to start operation with the new machinery in the fall of 1912, and have all properties free of mortgage.

JOHN W. KRAFT

The Boy Scouts of Gettysburg as they came through town Saturday afternoon attracted the attention of the Squaws a funeral was approaching the St. Joseph's church. Instantly these little children who were formerly noised at attention until the cortege had passed. It was an act that does not occupy the notice of many, but those who witnessed it were deeply impressed by the thoughtfulness that prompted it. It was reverent and manly expression and out of respect for the dead of such material let it be said are courtesies that are seldom seen.

MARK TWAIN'S DOUBLE.

His Photograph Did Valuable Service For the Humorist.

Mark Twain had many doubles scattered about the world, and about once a month he would receive a letter from some new double inclosing a photograph, says Archibald Henderson in his book "Mark Twain." To one of these doubles Mark Twain wrote:

Mr. Dear Sir:—Many thanks for your letter and for your photograph. You are the handsomest man in all creation. In fact, to be perfectly frank, you are the handsomest man I am myself. I was so much impressed by your appearance that I have had a dozen photographs made of you and am using it regularly in place of a mirror to shave by. Yours truly,

S. L. CLEMENS.

Mr. Henderson tells of another man complaining to him that it was almost impossible to get his photograph, but that he was a humorist even when it pertained to his appearance.

"It has been a very difficult matter," declared Mark, "to get a photograph of humor with which the public is familiar, but I have at last succeeded in the incorrigible custom of the public to send me photographs for humorist, however serious his work.

"Recently I received a poem which I never dreamed of getting to the public. At the time I was meditating, but on being invited to address the women meeting of a great convention I was prevented by a near friend to read this article. At the time I was told:

A Man In Wolf's Clothing

By DONALD CHAMBERLIN

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Leaving Gibraltar, I crossed the strait and landed in Tangier. My transition from an English army post to an Arab town to street on married me to a new world. Here I found one dude about him the swarthy natives, with their long robes, long white cotton parasols—probably the legs of the females, who were consigned like country, handed down to them by their male relatives—and the sights from what he has left on the other side of the water. The principle of superstition can be called religion. The Anglo-Saxon calls it by the name, the great dessert of Sahara, aiming to describe its vastness. Arriving at Northeastward in Tripoli, I had several camels and a Soudan man as servant for the journey.

There is no hotter place on the face of the earth than the desert. Nevertheless, I will admit that on a starlight night there is a certain fascination about it. When we were not moving at night in the cool of the day, I would lie and think about my camp just as if we were an army maneuvering through an enemy's country, and, strange to say, this vigilance kept away the dreaded monster thirst and robbers. The ingenuity of these latter in finding out valuables. They are natural spies. They smell out the rich as a dog does his food. I will say for the purposes of theft. If they could get their hands on anything out of it, to gather information as to how much it was worth and where it was.

One day a band of Touregs, as they are called, came riding down with the purpose, I felt sure, of ransoming me. Their appearance in the army as we, not as any force was under the command of a Europeans and well armed they would not think of attacking us. That same night my sentinal—I put one man on guard—awakened me. I heard the distant crack of a rifle and, then several of my men rushing pell mell out to different directions after the marauders. Another shot was heard, ringing only the great sandy billows. One of my men reported seeing a camel and rider away, but no human being was found.

The next day I was told that the dread man and proceeded on our way. That night while I was sitting in my tent a man on guard was asleep there was another shot, and a sentry was killed. Again I deployed my men, proceeding in the direction from which the wild anima' was found. There was ample opportunity for a report that I was among the sand billows, and by overshot himself. Search for him, but it was not likely to be seen. At any rate, we were rid of him, so we kept on.

I surmised that the party of Touregs who had initially come down with horrowing near us, intending to pick off a man every night. I felt sure that I should be so reduced as to render us an easy prey. I had some camels, dromedaries, and some arms and ammunition which I had bought myself. The outfit would be a fortune to them. I concluded that I must stop their game at all hazards.

The next night I placed a post guard in the direction I had a crevasse to it, and, tying some reports grass about the feet of my camels, I left the menitin. This I covered with a berean and put a few drops of oil on it. Then I had a dummy sentinel who might be said to deceive the Touregs. Then I had taken care to fix our camp on the highest ground, which would facilitate the approach in one direction, and placed a deep crevasse in the other movement—a hole in the ground—a few hundred yards from the camp. Shortly after dark, taking a rifle, I went out to the hole. Here I had made a comfortable light for me to see any one approach me.

I had a long wait, for it was over down before I saw a man. Then others, and then nothing more than a wolf prowling about, which I was not desirous trying to eat. Set, having nothing else to entertain me, I shot the wolf. He would stop here and there and dig in the sand. I had put on the grass and to the ground, to another spot and dig again. This while he was approaching the camp. Presently he stopped and at the turning in the grass, which he was lost to view, but I kept my eyes fixed on the spot where I had lost sight of him.

Suddenly at a point still nearer the camp I saw a face, head and body and the wolf, raising himself on his hind legs, ran away like a deer.

I had a good view of the creature's silhouette against the sky, and it was a silhouette against the sky, and it was a man. I am a good shot on the wing. Rating my rifle, I ordered all hands to cease fire. The wolf pitched forward and lay still.

I had instructed my foreman, Ahmed, that if he heard a report to call the men and if he heard a second one to bring them out. If I fired a revolver they came running toward me.

Then to those and dispatched. Then we went to the body of the wolf I had slain. We found him to be one of the Touregs who had come into our camp a few days before, as I had become looking rascal, who seemed to be a sort of slunk among them.

We secured the country for awhile, but found no one else. Trust no Arab for finding a man if he is murdered. I took similar precautions the next night and for several nights, but we were not troubled again in the same way. Nevertheless, we were knowing that we had got us to their game, I put it up.

DAGGERS READY FOR RECIPROCITY

Way Now Open For Months of Tariff Discussion.

WORK OF THE INSURGENTS

Farmers' Free List and Wool Bills Reported Adversely to the Senate. Way Defied Resignation.

Washington, June 25.—Adverse reports were made to the senate from the finance committee on the farmers' free list bill and the Underwood bill for the revision of the wool schedule. Both had passed the house.

These measures will now be taken up and discussed in the senate, with a due regard to their bearing upon the Canadian reciprocity measure, and the chances of securing executive approval if they are passed as independent measures or attached to the reciprocity bill.

The hasty call for a meeting of the finance committee was sent out by Chairman Penrose following the adoption in the senate of the resolution offered by Senator Owen directing the finance committee to report the wool bill to the senate by July 10.

All the Republican members of the committee were present, but two of the Democratic members, Senators Stone, of Missouri, and Johnson, of Maine, were absent.

Senator Lodge, the Republican insurgent member of the committee, voted with the Democrats for a favorable report on the farmers' free list bill and against a favorable report on the Underwood bill for the revision of the wool schedule.

There were several votes taken in the committee on the first being on a motion of Mr. Bailey to report the free list bill with the house amendments intact, but Mr. Lodge moved that it be reported adversely and this was carried.

A motion suggesting the holding of hearings on the bill for the revision of the wool schedule between this date and July 10 was made, but Mr. Heyburn moved that consideration of the bill be immediately reported adversely, and the substitution was adopted. The vote on the motion to report out the bill was impossible to hold satisfactory hearings to be held thus limited.

An amendment offered earlier by Mr. Bailey to strike from the house free list bill the products of the farm, such as meats and flour, was defeated.

It is understood now that the Canadian reciprocity measure is a grave danger of defeat, if not to death by amendments. The insurgents, in joining with the Democrats, and taking the control of the senate from the regular Republican organization, have actuated solely by a desire to kill reciprocity. They played every other card and lost and were confronted with the new passage of the reciprocity measure. In desperation, under the guise of the Democrats, they turned their backs on their own party, and went over to the Democratic side, hedge, boots and breeches. If not content to be killed by having the farmers' free list bill and the wool revision bill made the issue there will be no difficulty in fixing the responsibility.

The insurgents, it described the Republican party and joining hands with the Democratic party in support o. Democratic measures have assumed a responsibility which, if it is capable of many, they will have to answer for before the country. The insurgents will be held accountable for business disturbances which are bound to result if measures, as at present seems inevitable, be enacted on a general revision of the tariff.

The insurgents understand that the insurgents have joined hands with them not because they desire radical tariff revision at the special session, but because they see an opportunity by throwing the free list and the wool revision bill into the senate at this time to do some effective trafficking in reciprocity, to paraphrase in other words, are using the two Democratic measures for the selfish purposes indemned or defeat reciprocity.

BAPTISTS WILL AID RUSSIANS

Over $100,000 Raised to Build College in St. Petersburg.

Philadelphia, June 23.—The Baptist World Alliance raised in cash and subscriptions more than $100,000 to found a Baptist theological seminary at St. Petersburg, Russia. The sessions were by far the most dramatic of the entire convention.

The sweeping canvass followed the most impassioned of each of the thirty-one delegates from Russia, who told of the struggles and hardships they had experienced in upholding their faith in the homeland.

The wildest enthusiasm prevailed throughout the meeting, as contributions were made by unlettered contributors ranging from sums of $500 down were gathered in such a way as could be recorded. As each amount was announced cheer after cheer rang forth such as never before had been heard in the auditorium of the Baptist auditorium. Many were moved to tears.

The proposition to establish the seminary was introduced by Dr. Shake-speare, of Louisville, Ky., who, in a moving speech, told of the bitter persecutions to which they had been subjected for preaching their faith to their fellow countrymen. He said that a school was needed so coloring to convey to their hungry the suffering they had endured and their story sounded like a chapter from the life of a martyred country.

Some told how they had been imprisoned scores of times for preaching their beliefs; others had served long terms of exile in Siberia, while one had spent nine years of his early life in chains. Another would return to his home country and when he was glad in prison to serve a term because of his religious faith. One of the most touching brief address, a light shone from the face of a white haired man as he told of steadfast convictions in spite of persecution.

London, June 23.—The only unofficial Americans present at Westminster abbey who watched the coronation of King George were Charles P. Taft, the president's brother, with Mrs. Taft and Miss Taft; J. Pierpont Morgan and eight newspaper correspondents.

Mrs. Taft wore a white satin gown, embroidered in brilliants, and her jewels were superb and diamonds. Miss Taft's gown was of white tulle embroidered in silver and rhinestones. She wore a pearl necklace.

King George's first official act after the coronation was to kneel and receive the button telegraphic to St. Johns Ambulance brigade, the order having the coronations of the Philippines and Queen Victoria's jubilee. The last mission awaited the royal signal.

Two fatalities and many injuries occurred. At Lyne-Regis, Eng., a carnival in honor of the coronation was fired, burst and a prominent citizen, Thomas Hall, died.

Mr. Powers referred to his own case in Kentucky. "I appeal now," he said, "as I appealed to Governor Beckham, of Kentucky, for a respite for a negro man since when they were trying to commit judicial murder on me in Louisville. I feel for her, for the facing of death is part of her daily life, as it was mine. I faced death every day and every minute of the day. I prayed with it, spent the day with it, and went to bed with it."

Declares Reforms Are Necessary to Avoid Panics.

He explained them with a method-ical exposition that the Aldrich plan meant "the establishment of the government back of the national currency, basis on a representative republican basis." He told them that it was a powerful and well drawn plan to avoid the concentration of the control of money in Wall street or in Washington, and that it lacked all the objections which made Democrats oppose the United States bank.

"I have more than 1500 of the bankers and their wives present to hear and discuss discuss this question of the currency.

QUIZ YATES IN LORIMER SCANDAL

Probers Put Former Governor on the Grill.

EDITOR ALSO TESTIFIES

Assures Money Interests of Chicago of Using Same Methods of Corruption Against Lorimer Which Are Charged Caused His Election.

Washington, June 23.—The new investigation by a senate committee into the charges that bribery influenced the election of William Lorimer as United States senator from Illinois, began in earnest, with Richard Yates, former governor of Illinois, as the star witness.

Mr. Yates was questioned closely as to "jack-pot" funds and other forms of corruption in the Illinois legislature at the time he was governor.

George L. Record, editor and pub lisher of the Chicago Inter-Ocean, preceded Mr. Yates on the stand. He declared his belief that there was a "jack-pot" fund used to corrupt the Illinois legislature in the last twelve years. He accused the moneyed interests of Chicago of using the same methods of corruption in the legislature which have been charged effected Lorimer's election. Of the "jack-pot" at the session when Lorimer was elected, Record said it was believed that $100,000 had contributed. He declared he had personal knowledge of money used or contributed in Lorimer's behalf.

Mr. Healy, of counsel for the committee, examined the witness after Mr. Yates.

"Did you ever hear of a 'jack-pot' when you were governor?" asked Mr. Healy.

A moment later, he told of the passage of the bill providing for the municipal ownership of street railways. He related how Yerkes had come to him with an account of two men who had come to him and said if he would sign the bill and how he did it.

Mr. Mosher died shortly afterward, he said, and he never knew what became of the alleged bribery, investigation of which, he declared, was up to the Yerkes.

Mr. Yates said John J. Lane, a Chicago Inter-Ocean reporter, came to him at Springfield and informed him a corruption fund existed in the legislature. Because Lane was a reporter, Yates said, he assess the subject was not made a matter of record. Lane testified after Mr. Yates.

"There were the only rumors of corruption, he said, that he was able to hear.

The calling of Mr. Hitman was a surprise to all. He is the brother of Mr. Ingham, chairman of the posters exhibit at the Coliseum. Mr. Ingham went to keep a pressing engagement.

Mr. Hitman said he knew of no corrupt fund for the probers, Mr. Hitman said he was a member of the legislature in 1907, but had received no money to be used in the election of Lorimer. He declared he had never talked with anyone who had any information of a "jack-pot," operated one or received money from it.

"But I believe there has been a corrupt fund in the legislature for the last nine I went to Illinois twelve years," he added.

"What do you mean by a 'jack-pot' fund?" asked Senator Dillingham. "A reputation fund, I believe they call the money that is used to buy votes with, where I came from, the 'Black Horse Cavalry.'"

The attorney read editorials from the Inter-Ocean in which the investigation was made that prominent persons in Chicago and in Illinois politics had spoken by an investigation into the Lorimer election.

"To whom did you refer?" Mr. Mason asked. "I did not have any particular person in mind."

"Did you refer to Peoria then?" The common report was that Lorimer's election by the votes of Peoria came from a certain interest in Peoria.

"What interest?" "The liquor interest."

"Did common report connect any other interests with Lorimer's election that I recall," the witness said, odd that the liquor interests should be the cause had taken sides against Senator Lorimer.

"Do you mean to say that prominent citizens of Chicago would associate themselves as better than Senator Lorimer?" asked Senator Kern. "I am not cleared for dogs?" asked Senator Kern. "That puts it better than I could express it," said Mr. Hitman.

Mr. Hitman declared that he had heard the committee named him about his business relations with Senator Lorimer and Lorimer. "I remember speaking to Mr. Hitman about it," he said, "because he was not making a cent on enemy to Mr. Lorimer," explained Mr. Hitman.

The witness declined at first to say that he had borrowed money from either Hines, Tilden or Lorimer, but owns it was a question concerning his private business. "Oh, well, I will answer it then," he said, "I have borrowed money from Mr. Lorimer."

"Within the last eight or ten weeks."

NOW IS TIME TO SAVE THE TREES

Pests That Destroy Them Must Be Exterminated.

SPRAYING WILL KILL INSECTS.

Property Owners Should See to It That the Defoliation of Trees Is Stopped. Accounts of Loss Should Be Used in Spraying.

The care and preservation of existing old trees is a town nre sometimes of greater importance than setting out new ones, says W. Schotzoff, secretary of the shade tree commission of East Orange, N. J. In the pruning of trees, as in the painting, the strong should be treated as a unit. All the trees must be pruned in a uniform height, a height that will permit the unimpeded passage of vehicles and allow all street lights to be seen at night.

The lack of care of trees in the matter of placing guards around them, the leaving of short stubs in pruning and other neglect cause mutilation of the trunk and stems of trees that need attention. Tree surgery, therefore, should be practiced in the divisions of the care of trees. Cavities in trees, no matter how caused, should be thoroughly cleaned of all decayed wood, painted with tar and filled with cement. The filling follows the contour of the tree. The cement, however, is not filled flush with the outside of the tree, but is brought up to the cambium layer. The new growth of wood forms a collar around the border of the filled cavity, and in time the bark rolls over the cement and covers it entirely, leaving no trace of the cement exposed.

The most important work by far in the care of trees is the extermination of the insect pests that annually threaten to injure and destroy trees. From the time the foliage appears in the spring until the fall there is the cry in all parts of the country, "Don't something be done to save our trees?" The annual destruction of trees by insects is enormous. If they are not entirely killed they are defoliated by caterpillars and lose their usefulness for a season.

What can be done by a property owner and the tree department was shown in East Orange, N. J., in the campaign against the elm leaf beetle. Although the ravages of this pest were very great in northern New Jersey during the last few years, the elm street trees of East Orange and many an private property were saved by timely spraying.

In 1909 and 1910, during the month of March, the shade tree commission issued a circular to the citizens of East Orange having elm trees on their private property, asking to give a life history of the elm leaf beetle and pointed out that the only effective way to control the pest is to spray the foliage with arsenate of lead as soon as the leaves unfold. The shade tree commission offered to spray trees in the defense property at the rate of 82 a tree. Many property owners responded, and a number of those on private property also sprayed. The result was a handsome, neglected tree lines, and in mid summer it was difficult to see the contrast between sprayed and unsprayed trees. Those trees on which no spray on private property that were treated retained their foliage throughout the season, while the unsprayed trees in many cases less than fifty feet away, were completely defoliated.

Un sound judgment when planting tree leaves. See that the surroundings harmonize with the other you select.

AD WOLGAST IS READ CHAMPION

Boxed Battles Prove He Is Tough Nut to Crack.

BOOMS HIS NEXT OPPONENT.

Little Englishman Is Scheduled to Meet the Title Holder in Twenty Round Bout in Frisco July 4—Battle Ranked As a Warm One.

Ad Wolgast's impressive victory over Frankie Burns in San Francisco recently has given the pugilistic world that he is the real lightweight champion of the world. Burns, a fairly clever, game boy, put up a desperate fight, but outclassed and outfought to a terrible beating. In this bout Wolgast showed better skill and force than ever before. He took many damaging punches on the jaw and at one time dropped to his knees, only to keep on hammering until his antagonist was beaten.

This victory, following the stopping of "Ole Bested" Hogan in twelve rounds in New York and the defeat of Georges Memsic and Anton La Grave in California, has increased Wolgast's reputation and has convinced many ring experts that he is not a counterfeit champion or "cheese champion," as the disappointed Bertling Nelson nicknamed him a year ago.

Wolgast has proved conclusively that he can take punishment and can hit. He is not a heavy dancing master but a rough, strong rusher who is consistently trying to get over a good blow. It is apparent now that the Wolgast-Memsic contest was a fake bout when he shaded up with K. O. Brown in Philadelphia and let the Brown boy stay the limit. The bouts did not show the aggressiveness that since has characterized.

It is possible that he was afraid to punish Memsic for fear that he should be put out, and, furthermore, his brother proved a setback to him, due to restrictions caused by a long injury. But Wolgast was another boy in his most recent fight, and when Burns showed real fighting ability in the early rounds of seventeen declared but the thirteenth round. Wolgast was on top of the earth.

This opinion probably greater on the scores of Gown Morem, the English boxer who came to within a foot of the noses and watched Wolgast like a hawk. Morem said that he never wanted to fight twenty rounds in the same ring or duty a and in the opinion of good judges Wolgast will have the toughest battle of his career when he is not only a first class boxer, but he is a game fighter who has exhibited gift hard punch in either hand and much experience. He knocked Memsic out in seven rounds last fall and promptly challenged Wolgast, but the latter avoided the making of a match for several months and public opinion has forced him to acknowledge the anxiety Britton.

Morem boxed six rounds with Wolgast in the ring about three years ago and outpointed him so easily that the spectators left after the fifth round and said. That is why Morem believes that Wolgast will be no match. But Morem may learn that Wolgast is a far different proposition this time, though it is readily conceded that Morem on past performances has a royal chance to win.

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just cooped in the oven and fresh cut from the loaves herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

MANY ENDORSE THE CHAUTAUQUA

Outgoing Chautauqua Takes Action Lauding Its Endorsement of Plan. Heads of Local Institutions also.

The management of the Gettysburg Chautauqua has received the following letter from the Rev. Henry Anstadt representing the Gettysburg Ministerial Association:

"At the recent meeting of the ministers of Gettysburg the subject of the proposed Gettysburg Chautauqua was discussed and I was requested to express to you our hearty interest in the project, and to offer whatever co-operation it may be possible for us to render. We believe that the proposed Chautauqua will be a great help in preparing will be for the general spirit of the community. Co-operation of this sort ought to have the encouragement of all who are interested in the truest welfare of our town. We are sury much gratified also to learn that your plans for the Chautauqua contemplate a careful guarding of the sanctity of the Lord's Day. This is itself, to connection with a project of such proportions as this which you are arranging, is a most important matter and pulls well worth the whole effort."

Dr. J. A. Clutz, president of trustees of the Chautauqua management the following:

"A Chautauqua at Gettysburg will have a most inspiring setting amid surroundings rich with memories of historical and suggestive. The classic halls of the College, the seminary as well as the noble memorials of one of the greatest conflicts in history impress one with lofty thoughts. The following quo will lead our own people to a fuller appreciation of the heritage and offer to others a stimulus to seek after larger truth and a higher purpose."

President Granville also favors the Chautauqua plan and says:

"It affords an unusual opportunity to endorse the movement for a Chautauqua assembly at Gettysburg. I am very sure that it will meet with bountiful success. Gettysburg is an ideal place for this purpose because of its rich historical beauty, its permanent historical associations and its educational institutions it already has as an educational center. As president of Gettysburg College I heartily welcome this cultural movement for it cannot fail to add to the educational prestige of this Mecca of all patriotic Americans.

EPIDEMIC ARATHS

The small pox epidemic which broke out in Franklin county recently and continued to spread in that county is rapidly abating. Dr. J. C. In all there were sixty one cases of smallpox in Dr. Hunt's district, including Adams county. Now there are only four cases of the disease under quarantine. Dr. Hunt says that in every house where there was smallpox all those not vaccination was not practised, all measures of the health authorities to disinfect, except con, who is still being carefully watched by Dr. Hunt, and the situation is now well in hand.

CAPTURED FOUR TRAIN ROBBERS

Officers Wilson, Shuster and Stroup with Deputy Get Four of a Band of Six Train Hiders in Local Yards. Thirty Days.

Officer Charles H. Wilson, Chief Shuster, Officer Stroup and Dan Bair, trick deputized for the occasion, made a clever arrest of a quartet of train hiders along the Western Maryland tracks in the west end of town Friday afternoon. The four men were taken at once to the office of Squire Harvey where they were sent to jail for thirty days.

Officer Wilson got a message during the afternoon from Operator Bream saying that one of the long Port Covington coal trains that has been about half past two was carrying a number of troublesome train riders. The crew had ordered the men off but they became impudent and refused to leave.

When the train pulled into the long yards the officers were on hand and to their look sharps at things. They were six in the party and three tried to get away, two of them succeeding, the men running on the fields towards the brick plant and the other two hiding under the low bank back of the brick yards. The officers were busy with the other four and could not follow.

To Squire Harvey the men gave their names as John Smith, Robert Potts, William N. Bahlens and Charles Kennedy. The first-named gentleman owning that he was stealing a ride to Hanover he had threatened and could not walk and another saying that he wanted to get to Baltimore, One of the men was a confirmed cripple.

The Western Maryland has had more trouble lately with train riders than for many months. Last week Officer Wilson found in the output of fourteen on the other side of the mountain, all being bums in one raid.

Not only this week have train weapons on a crew over Summit when they refused to pull them off but two of the troupe captured here on Friday came all the way from West Virginia.

NEW SCHOOL TAX LAWS

The collection of occupation tax from non-property holders for school purposes has always been a difficult proposition and the great part of it has never been collected. The new law provides two methods of how to collect this tax. If non property owners refuse to pay on demand made for notice, the taxes can be collected from the employer, whether an individual, firm or corporation, and the amount thus collected can be deducted from the wages of the employee.

Those who do not own property and do not work for any employer are the only ones who can escape payment.

After this year there will be no district tax assessment allowed on school taxes, but five per cent penalty will be added after October 1st.

INNOCENT, HE PLEADED GUILTY

Alleged Pickpocket Entered Plea of Guilty before Judge Swope but Declared his Innocence as Sentence was to be Pronounced.

An unusual incident occurred in Adams County Court on Monday when Harry Bradford, one of the alleged pickpockets caught here Memorial Day, pleaded guilty and when Judge Swope was about to pronounce sentence stopped the whole proceeding by saying: "Your Honor, I am innocent of this charge but I thought I would get off easier by pleading guilty."

The Court at once informed him that the plea of guilty would not be accepted from a man who claimed himself innocent and he was held for trial at August Court.

Bradford was charged with taking a purse containing one dollar from the person of J. A. Johnston, of Wilmington.

Edward A. Wewer, Esq., represented the prisoner and said that he was but eighteen years of age, that he had been left an orphan five years ago and thrown upon his own resources at the age of thirteen. Bradford said he had been employed with a clothing manufacturing firm and that he could have had people here to testify to his former character if he had known it was necessary. Then he said,

"Your Honor I am innocent of this charge but the evidence is so strong against me that I thought I would get off easier by pleading guilty." He was at once remanded to jail.

COUNTY PICNIC DATE JULY 26

Two Large Picnics to be United this Year and Big Celebration will be the Result. Hershey Park the Place.

The annual Adams County picnic and the annual Hershey Home picnic of Adams County will be consolidated this year and held as one big affair at Hershey Park on Wednesday, July 26. The uniting of these two events each large in itself. Insures one of the greatest harvests of county people in recent years.

This is the first time that Hershey Park has been selected as the place for the annual outing. It is situated between Harrisburg and Lebanon and is one of the most attractive resort places in the Keystone State. Swimming pools, Holly Park, Rolling Springs Park and Paxtang Park have been visited in other years but the novelty of going to Hershey is expected to draw more than all of the others. The committee in charge has arranged for a low rate which will be announced later.

The picnic will be under the joint management of the Biglerville and Bendersville bands. D. C. Auger and P. S. Peters represent the Bendersville Citizens' Band and E. L. Waltermyer and F. W. Thomas are the committee for the Biglerville Citizens' Band.

Hershey Park has all the attractions usually found at a place of that nature but the management say that will be nothing a good item when they take to the big three, July 26.

FEATHERS AND ROSEHILLS.

Chilliness and growing cats are sure to rogue and soon pay for themselves in the increase in the number of hens feeding their succulent greens. They are heated by heat generated by confluence stirring a water pan keeps the chilliest fall of vapor.

One of the large city papers, the York (Pa.) Daily, devotes an editorial to the "Chicken Business" in York and gives that the York doctors, lawyers, businessmen with "Chicken Mash" Chickens have caught the infection. The editor concludes: "It is a fine thing to see so many some days." Well, every body knows that. Everybody is a chickens everywhere, and Biddy's on top to stay there.

The farmer is now coming into his own. The day dawn when the man of the sun browned brow and hard hand was called a "chicken farmer." The directors now are among the ignorant, for they do not know the value of fertile eggs, and the nations the world over declare his occupation to be the foundation of the material welfare of the race.

The chicken industry is now roped for a $20,000 appropriation for poultry culture, and how much of the money sort is being heard in legislative halls and how much for bread, and the success of the poultry industry is gradually reversing their considerations, every year and just think—it was once called a "chicken business."

An American in Rome noticed the best in a beehive and conceived the idea of raising queens. He therefore sewed a frame with linen and placed it with eggs above the bees. Sixteen days of the twenty eggs hatched big plump chicks. The remainder were in the hatches chiefly choice a season with such love willingly and more successful better try the trick.

The Bluecroft Poultry Record of London attributes much of the lack of success in poultry culture to the tendency to the fact that English newspapers do not devote as much space to it as ben. A newspaper on this side that devotes a page to the American hen is considered guilty of hidden motives and says that all-over print poultry information is the best advertising.

YORK HOPES FOR THE CONVENTION

York, after Convention of Church of the Brethren, Says that Gettysburg and Pen Mar are the Only Likely Competitors.

York hopes to get the big Church of the Brethren meeting in 1915 for which the Gettysburg people are working. The Daily says:

"York will probably be decided upon as the place for holding the 1915 national annual conference of the Church of the Brethren, which is frequently attended by crowds ranging in size from 20,000 to 40,000 persons.

"Gettysburg and Pen Mar will be the only serious competitors to York.

"If York is selected the conference will be held at the fair grounds, whose infrastructure will be amended that will seat a congregation of 6,000 persons This would be a temporary structure.

"It having been decided to hold the conference of 1915 in this district, with the greatest gathering in the history of the church in looked forward to, and if held in York not less than 30,000 persons are expected. There are several reason for this. In the first place the great bulk of the membership of the church is in the East, four districts of Pennsylvania containing one quarter of the entire membership in the denomination. Then the desire of the Western members to visit the East is general. Thousands of Westerners never neglect the opportunity which a conference in the East offers them to visit the homes of their ancestors or of their parents. Another reason which is favorable for a large attendance is that the visitors, once in York, are close to the historic battlefield of the Civil War, Chief Bender, taking about a game which he lost against Russell Ford in the 1911 world's series.

"You know, Johnson had 3 three league, and it looked as if we would be able to get him there. I gured on nailing the second game for a certain victim, then passing Walter and getting Dauss. That would leave it with the Swede sticking on third.

"I had it all worked out right, as Eddie. Then I gave him a ball that looked like a strike to me, but the umpires a ball as you could find, almost hitting the ground as it broke. Johnson took the ninth inning on it and also it or else pass it along and then I would have had to pitch to Speaker to him.

"Instead of that, Sweaney squeezed the ball and smashed it on the fly to Danny Moeller, and I had the game all right, and Johnson came over. It was a shame to put that man out, but it what I mean. I don't say that we would have won the game, but I'm convinced but Russ Ford. But the game was lost and Johnson defeated. Eddie Plowman hadn't pulled at the worst ball I fired all day and struck out the yes. It is always a case of you never can tell."

"That only goes to show how a little thing will knock the starch out of baseball," says Chief Bender, athletic Chief Bender, talking about a game which he last against Russell Ford in the 1911 world's series.

THE CREAM SEPARATOR.

Machine of Great Value to the Modern Dairy Farmer.

The great value of the cream separator comes from its economical value. Some of its advantages are as follows:

First.—By its efficiency over all other systems of creaming more butter fat and cream of a better quality is obtainable. Some manufacturers claim an increase of from 10 to 15 per cent per fat by the use of the centrifugal separator, which undoubtedly this figure is approximately correct. These dairymen who have used a cream separator realize the greatest profits in this particular.

Second. The cream separator as a means of saving time and labor in the dairy—this we consider of the first importance and labor required to handle the milk; also economy of room for setting

The invention of the centrifugal cream separator and its manufacture in this country dates back as far even as the farm are one of the greatest factors in the prosperity in the dairy farmer. The separator has been brought to its present high state of perfection by the inventive genius of farmers in replace returns from the immediate vicinity of the creamery the milk for the cream to rise which are required on account of fewer trips to the creamery to deliver the cream.

Fourth.—Here and better quality of cream is obtained as a result of which or value for feeding to young calves and pigs.

The comparative losses of fat by the gravity system and the separator are as follows, the per rent given being the approximate amount of butter fat that is the skimmilk by the various methods.

First.—By the shallow pan system, from twenty to twenty-five.

Second.—By the deep cold setting system, twelve to fifteen per cent.

Third.—By the dilution of water separator, 1 to 3 per cent, and by the separator, five one-hundredths of 1 per cent.

The question which arises with the farmer who is using only a separator is, What kind and what size shall I buy? The answer to this question is an easy one to the mind of the writer. Always buy a machine of a size or two larger than the capacity needs of the dairy and of a thoroughly reliable agent who will thoroughly convince his machine to do satisfactory work and always be on hand in working order for one year if properly operated and cared for. Practically all the standard makes of machines will do satisfactory work if their capacities and carelessness in operating the cream separator and in washing the same in most cases responsible for the short life of the machine and not to any fault in the construction of it.—Ray C. Potts, Oklahoma Agricultural College.

Feature the Pigs.

The pig that has been supplied with an abundance of pasture and a small grain ration during the summer months will be in good condition to market by the latter part of September. A number should be finished off with fattening them for market at 200 to 275 pounds each. Those that go into this way will yield far more profit than the same corn which the pasture and hogs are doubled to heavier weights. Pasture is always an aid in any ways made while the pig is young.

Milk Fever Treatment.

As a rule milk fever is confined to cases of milk fever. Every dairyman should own a good veterinarian's pump and be able to use it himself. This imitates the udder with so much air in it that the teats distended and begin to fill. Be sure to cleanse perfectly with soap and water, especially the end very part of the pump and outside the cannula which is inserted into the teats with the same solution.—Farm Journal.

The Profitable Dairy Cow.

Don't allow that old reprobate of a cow to live another day. Get a profitable one of milk for five cents months, then sell her. It's the cow that gives a reasonable amount of milk from seven to nine months in the year that pays you safely bank as a profitable fellow.—Farm and Home.

A Continuous Harvest.

The milk crop can be harvested every day in the year, and it is the right kind of cows and give them the right kind of care.

State Highway Commissioner Bigelow Chooses Roads from Harrisburg to Gettysburg as among First to Receive Attention.

Announcement has been made at the State Highway Department at Harrisburg that the roads about Gettysburg will be among the first to receive attention made as now figured. bill passed at the recent session of the state legislature. State Highway Commissioner Bigelow announced on Thursday that he would begin inspections of road routes between Harrisburg and Gettysburg next week with a view to determining which road shall be reconstructed first. Mr. Bigelow, together with others in the Highway Department, realize the vast amount of travel over the roads centering Gettysburg and it is principally for this reason that the roads between the Capitol City and this place have been selected for first attention.

At the Highway Department it is stated that every effort will be put forth to make Gettysburg a center for good roads and the seven routes proposed under the Sproul bill, which has been passed and signed, will be among the earliest to receive state attention.

This is about the best news the town has had for some time for the condition of some of the roads entering Gettysburg has long been recognized as a deterrent influence in the matter of entering and receiving automobile traffic to and from this place.

WINSTON GETS HIS FREEDOM

Robert Lee Winston, Principal in Wirich Beat of Some Weeks ago, Released on Habeas Corpus Proceeding. History of the Case.

Robert Lee Winston, colored, held for court on a charge of larceny and bailee, was given his freedom Friday morning at a habeas corpus hearing before Judge Swope, the case lacking some of the technical features of the crime with which Winston was charged.

It will be recalled that Winston was arrested on a warrant sworn out by William Thomas, Thomas claimed Winston "sensed to buy his watch and asked to be allowed to carry it for several days to see what kind of time it would keep." Later Winston passed the time piece to Perrow Myers, it is said, for seventy five cents. The watch was valued at $4.50.

Winston claimed he intended to return the watch though the testimony, at the hearing at which he was committed to jail by Squire Harnish, was to the effect that he had been asked for it and refused to give it up.

Winston was so much incensed over his arrest that he said he would see that others were brought to justice and declared he would start with Mr. Sunday liquor sellers whom he said he was able to name.

BOW BACKED SETTLE.

A Quaint Revival Suitable For Use on the Summer Porch.

Cottage furniture, as it is called, is very popular at present, and we are being treated to many quaint revivals in this line. The love tucked settle I illustrated here is a novel but comfort able design, suitable either for the hall or the veranda. It is a light sample piece of furniture to be easily moved from place to place in comfortably with the mood of the moment or the variation in the position of the sun. PRETTY SETTLE.

tractive Experience. Mission furniture and most of the art craft specimens are built on substantially that they cannot easily be transferred from place to place by the average woman, and even on the summer porch there are times when the settle would be better not available. Porch furniture of wicker or bamboo is very nice, but the settee furniture has its disadvantages in the cushions, which cannot be kept so fade, and some of it warps with the weather.

The snake is a fine specimen and has been named "Alex." The seconds "Jos." the six footer which died in December after having been a pet about the station for several years. "Alex" has for his companion the mascots "Tom" the 4 foot rat "George," a lively ten inch water snake which was recently given a berth in the baggage room.
